FORTY-SEVEN DEAD IN RAILWAY WRECK

Horrible Smash-up on Baltimore and Ohio When Trains Collided Near Washington

GHASTLY SCENES ATTEND CATASTROPHE

Washington, Dec. 31.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon the number of dead as a result of the Terra Cotta wreck, according to the police, had reached fifty-three. Forty-five of the number have been identified.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The list of dead as the result of the appalling wreck at Terra Cotta on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad last night, had reached forty-seven at noon today.

Inquiry at the various hospitals of the city, where the injured have been taken, shows a number of persons whose condition is regarded as hopeless.

The injured number over fifty, nearly if not quite all of whom will recover.

The wreck was caused by an engine drawing eight empty cars running into local No. 66, known as the Frederick express, just as the passenger train had pulled out from the station bound for this city. Engineer Hildebrand, who was in charge of the "dead" train and who was arrested shortly after the disaster, declares that on account of the dense fog he was unable to distinguish the signal light at Takoma park block station.

Tower Operator Phillips declares that the danger signal was in its proper place and that Engineer Hildebrand's train passed the tower station going at a speed of from fifty to sixty miles an hour.

BOARD ELECTS HOFFMAN COUNTY ATTORNEY FOR 1907

Both Democratic Members Cast Their Votes for Him —Schlegel Chosen.

Just before its final adjournment for 1906 the board of county commissioners this afternoon elected Edward G. Hoffman county attorney. His old term expired early in December and he made his application, but the selection has been delayed from time to time until today. President Griebel and Mr. Tonkel both voted for him. Mr. Hockmeyer cast his ballot for Henry Colerick.

Mr. Hoffman was county chairman during the last campaign and made a most excellent record. He had also served as county attorney since the resignation of N. D. Dougman and although not regularly appointed he had advised the board since his term expired.

Adam Schlegel, the present incumbent was also elected custodian at the courthouse. He has served most acceptably and his election was practically assured on account of the efficient manner in which he has performed his duties. Nelson O. Bart was a republican applicant for the place but at the last moment William Goodfellow was announced as an aspirant and he got Mr. Hockmeyer's vote.

MASON ANNOUNCES THE APPOINTMENTS FOR HIS OFFICE

Three Members of the Old Force Are to Be Retained By Him.

County Clerk-elect Joseph N. Mason made announcement today of his appointments and there will be few changes when he takes charge of his office in the morning. William A. Hammond, the efficient deputy, who has been in the circuit court for eight years and who has kept a set of records that are models for neatness and accuracy, will be retained.

John A. Bentler, who has also been in the office long enough to earn the title of veteran, is another deputy that will be found on duty and to his knowledge of the records and most excellent service given in the office is due the fact that he is retained. John Belot will also hold his position and the selection is very highly commended as he is capable and accommodating and highly thought of by the lawyers.

William Clutter will retire from the superior court, where he has been the deputy for three years and will be succeeded by John A. Buschman, former county surveyor. Mr. Clutter has been very proficient and has lots of friends. The new man is well and favorably known and his appointment is looked upon as an excellent selection. Mr. Mason will take the place of one man in the office and Mike Walsh will retire. He is a good man for the place and leaves the office with the best wishes of a big circle of friends.

HON. FRED J. HAYDEN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Former State Senator Long a Prominent Fort Wayne Citizen.

Hon. Frederick J. Hayden, former state senator, long prominent in financial and business circles of Fort Wayne and well known in Indiana public life, died at noon Sunday at his home on East Lewis street. Mr. Hayden was 70 years of age, and his death, following an illness of several months, was due to a heart affection attending a hardening of the arteries. Though confined to his home for some time like twelve months, the patient's condition did not become alarming until within the past week. Up to a few days ago it was believed that he would regain his health sufficiently to be able to again.

Mr. Hayden's career was a long and active one. He was a native of Canada, born February 23, 1836, at Coburg, the son of Rev. and Mrs. William Hayden. His father was the first missionary sent to Canada by the first missionary denomination, and the son was given unusual educational advantages for those days, eventually completing a course of study at Victoria college, where he was graduated as a member of the class of 1864. Two years later the college conferred upon him the degree of Master of Arts.

Leaving college he entered actively into business life in Canada, and was for a number of years secretary of the Coburg and Marmora Railway and Mining company, of Ontario. This position he resigned in 1874 and came to Fort Wayne, where the remaining years of his life were spent.

Elected to Legislature.

Politically, Mr. Hayden was a democrat, and he took an active interest in public affairs. In 1884 he was elected a representative in the state legislature from Allen county, serving through two sessions with marked ability and satisfaction to his constituents. Four years later, in 1888, Mr. Hayden was elected to the state senate for the joint district comprising Allen and Whitley counties. He was actively instrumental in aiding the passage of the Australian ballot law in 1889 and of the new tax law in 1891.

In 1893 he was appointed by Governor Hovey as a world's fair commissioner for the Twelfth Indiana district, and was later elected treasurer of the Indiana board of managers for the exposition. In this capacity he gave largely of his time and his talents to the affairs of Indiana at the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago. It was in no small degree due to his prudent business management that the Indiana commission was enabled to make a creditable showing, to maintain its building open until the close of the fair and to still turn back into the state treasury nearly $2,000 of the appropriation which had been expended.

Interest in Agriculture.

One marked characteristic in Mr. Hayden's life was his interest in agriculture. He had extensive real estate holdings and was a successful raiser of high-grade horses, cattle and swine. Another institution in which he took a deep interest was the Fort Wayne fair. He served as a vice president of the organization, was invariably an exhibitor and aided the enterprise in every way within his power.

During recent years his time had been given over largely to the management of his real estate and financial interests, which were extensive. He maintained an office on Barr street near Berry for many years. A man of

LEADERS BETRAYED INTO HANDS OF POLICE

Traitor in Revolutionary Group in St. Petersburg Busy.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 31.—Acting on information furnished by a traitor, the police, during the past few days, captured more than a hundred leaders and members of the St. Petersburg military organization of the social democrats, who were conducting a propaganda in the army and navy. Among those taken into custody was the editor of a secretly published paper entitled The Barracks, twenty-five soldiers and several women. The police also arrested many members of an important group of terrorist social revolutionists and captured, according to report, a list of twenty-seven high officials who had been sentenced to death.

FIRST DECATUR CAR IS NOW IN ROUTE TO FORT WAYNE

Some Trouble Encountered in First Trip on New Interurban.

The first car on the Fort Wayne and Springfield interurban line is this afternoon making its initial trip between Decatur and Fort Wayne, and while some trouble is being encountered, it is expected that the car will reach this city before the close of the afternoon.

The car in use is an express car, and it carries among others President W. H. Fiedler-Johann, Attorney J. H. Koenig, George B. Dusenberry, of the Westinghouse Electric company, of Cleveland; Clarence Renshaw, superintendent of the engineering department of the Cleveland lines, and J. T. Krause, a prominent Cleveland interurban man, as well as a number of Decatur citizens.

The start was made from Decatur at noon, but progress is slow from the fact that the machinery is not working smoothly, and the car is compelled to proceed very slowly. It is the intention to bring the car down town, and General Manager Emmons and other Wabash Valley officials will meet it at the city limits.

FORT WAYNE STOCK AGAINST BARBER IN BOXBOARD

Mitchell Says Stockholders are Opposed to President of Concern.

Practically all of the United Boxboard and Paper company stock held in Fort Wayne will be voted against President A. L. Barber at the February meeting, either through the Boxboard Protective association or directly by a committee composed of Mayor William J. Hosey, Hon. Charles McCulloch and Beeks Erick.

This was in effect the understanding at the close of a session held yesterday afternoon at the Wayne club at which Sidney Mitchell was present and at which he explained his scheme for reorganization. He made a most favorable impression during his visit to Fort Wayne. He arrived yesterday accompanied by George J. Marott, of Indianapolis, who is working with him, and both were guests of Stephen B. Fleming, secretary of the company.

Fort Wayne people interested in the company want Mr. Fleming retained as secretary as they appreciate his capability and he will remain in office in event he secures a board of directors that is congenial and stated yesterday unless he does he will not hold the secretaryship. There will be another meeting of local stockholders in a short time and a definite plan will be formulated for voting the stock.

What Mr. Mitchell Says.

Mr. Mitchell is quoted as saying after the meeting:

"The stockholders of the Boxboard company will be all right if the treasury bonds are sold and the Fort Wayne stockholders today agreed to take their share. I know the company can be financed in that way and Mr. Fleming agreed that if the bonds are sold the company would be put in first-class shape."

"The sentiment of the meeting was that the best plan is to offer the treasury bonds to the stockholders and thus reduce the $800,000 debt which Barber says must be paid. I never felt stronger about any proposition than that this company can be financed in this way."

"I told the committee how I went to New York to see Mr. Barber on behalf of the Chicago men, before taking any drastic measures, to ask that the stockholders be given an opportunity to pay off the indebtedness by subscription to bonds and to ask that the United Paper company be turned over to the Boxboard company. But Barber refused. I then asked him to give the stockholders a chance to vote on his plans and he refused. Then I could see no other way than through the courts, and I knew that unless I took action and took it speedily, the company would lose its best assets and property that now earns five-sixths of the profits of the company."

NEGROES WILL CRY OUT AGAINST DISCHARGE OF TROOPS

Afro-American Council is Urging Them to Protest on New Years Day.

New York city, Dec. 31.—From the pulpits of the negro churches there was read yesterday a proclamation issued under the auspices of the Afro-American council, of which Bishop Alexander Walters is president, and Dr. L. G. Jordan is secretary, urging negroes to assemble tomorrow in the churches and other meeting places to celebrate the forty-third anniversary of the issuance of the emancipation proclamation. The call states:

"We shall tell of our material progress, as is shown by the accumulation of personal and real property, to the amount of more than $1,000,000,000. We should proclaim to the world our educational progress; tell how we have eliminated more than 50 per cent. of our illiteracy and we should cry aloud against the injustices that are being perpetrated against us by 'Jim Crow' and disenfranchisement laws in the south."

"We should let the world know what an injustice has been done the race by the dismissal and condemnation of innocent negro soldiers without process of law."

FIFTY STORY BUILDING IS PLANNED FOR GOTHAM

The Metropolitan Insurance Company Rushing Work on Great Structure.

New York, Dec. 31.—With the announcement yesterday of the awarding of the contract for the structural steel for the 700-foot tower which is to complete the solid block of buildings erected by the Metropolitan Life insurance company between Madison and Fourth avenues and Twenty-fourth and Twenty-third streets, came the news that work on the huge structure will be pushed from now on with all possible speed.

Out-topped in height by only one other man-built structure in the world—the Eiffel tower—and nine stories higher than the highest office building ever planned, the Metropolitan tower, as the fifty-story addition will be known, will cover the plot on which formerly stood the Parkhurst church.

Order is Gigantic.

Post & McCort were the successful bidders for the steel contract, which is said to be the largest single order for structural steel ever given for one building.

More than 3,500 tons of steel will be used from the third sub-basement to the skeleton work in the tower, more than 740 feet of perpendicular continuous bridgework.

In the Eiffel tower, which rises to a height of 984 feet, only 7,000 tons of steel were used. The fact that its base is almost three times as large as the foundation on which the Metropolitan tower is to stand and its height more than 200 feet greater emphasizes the greater strength the new structure, with 1,500 additional tons of steel in its construction, will have.

In the sub-basement single columns weighing forty-five tons each are to form the main supports of the building. As their length will not exceed thirty feet, they will weigh 3,000 pounds for each foot of their height. This is said to be the heaviest individual weight ever found in a steel column.

Of greatest importance in the steel work of the colossal structure will be the wind bracing which will give rigidity to the exposed surfaces. It was thought that the limit in wind bracing had been reached in the tall, narrow building now being built at the southeast corner of Wall street and Broadway. In the Metropolitan tower the steel stiffening will exceed in point of weight any other structure ever erected.

PASSENGERS WERE HELD UP BY PAIR OF ROBBERS

Sleepers in Pullman on Sea Board Airline Robbed by Bold Bandits.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 31.—Near Lakeside, Va., on the Seaboard Air Line at 2:30 this morning the passengers in the sleeper of train No. 81 out of Richmond were held up and robbed of about $800 besides jewelry. The robbers, two in number, got on at Richmond as passengers and one remained in a day coach while the other went through the sleeper. The Pullman conductor, while attempting to arrest the man robbing his passengers, was shot through the arm by the robber. The man then pulled the emergency brake cord, stopped the train and with his confederate escaped to the woods.

The two men who held up the Seaboard train are known to the local authorities. They had been shadowed here for four days, but gave the police the slip. It is expected they will soon be captured. The robbers boarded the train at Acca station north of this city, and passed through Richmond on it. A Petersburg special says they were heavily armed and had the passengers at their mercy.

HAUGHTY RAJAH TOOK TUMBLE. Troublesome Ruler in Celebes Island Falls to His Death.

The Hague, Dec. 31.—The famous rajah of Goa, island of Celebes, Dutch East Indies, who had for many years caused trouble to the government authorities, has been found dead in a ravine. A Dutch punitive force discovered the rajah's stronghold on Christmas day but the chieftain fled with half a dozen followers. During his flight the rajah and his companions toppled over a precipice into a ravine and the whole party was killed.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 31.—W. S. Morton, the Cleveland real estate broker, who was reported to have been assaulted and robbed while in his room at a prominent downtown hotel yesterday, is still in a critical condition at the hospital. He rested well last night and while in a semi-conscious condition the detectives were summoned to his bedside.

BOSTON HAS SUNDAY ENFORCEMENT OF BLUE LAWS

Every Puritan Measure the Police Could Find Was Sternly Applied.

Boston, Dec. 31.—Every blue law remaining on the statute books of Massachusetts that Police Commissioner O'Meara could find was enforced in Boston yesterday, and today the police presented to the judges of the municipal court the names of about 400 men with requests that summonses be issued for them on the charge of violating the Sunday laws.

No arrests were made yesterday, but in every case observed by the police the name and address and occupation of the offender were taken for presentation to the court today.

Among those found to be violating the Sunday law which forbids any except works of necessity or charity, were movers of theatrical scenery, teamsters, expressmen, agents of transfer companies, workmen on the Washington street subway, attendants of fruit stands, stevedores and other water front employees, window and sidewalk washers, janitors of business buildings and scores of others engaged in minor occupations.

No Streets Cleaned. Perhaps the most serious effect of the "blue" Sunday from the standpoint of the citizens at large was the refusal of Superintendent of Street Cleaning Cummings to order out the usual gang to clean the streets in the business district. It has been the custom for years to give these streets a thorough cleaning on Sunday, as most of them are narrow and on week days are so congested that good cleaning is out of the question, though they are swept every night.

Yesterday Mr. Cummings said he would not expose his men to the liability of prosecution, and today Boston's down town streets started the week full of dirt. All these things came about as the result of a controversy between District Attorney John B. Moran and Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara, which started a week ago.

Officials in Wrangle. Mr. Moran wrote to Superintendent of Police Pierce today notifying him that complaint had been made against Sunday work on the subway, and instructing him to stop it. Mr. O'Meara took the ground that Mr. Moran should have addressed the head of the department, and added that Moran was some late as this work had been going on for years. Moran replied by saying he proposed to enforce the laws and accused O'Meara of not closing houses of vice.

Each day for a week both officials have issued statements to each other, and Saturday O'Meara announced that Sunday every blue law would be enforced, and so far as possible they were, in the manner indicated.

MR. GILHAMS IN TOWN.

Congressman Here for Brief Rest Before Returning East.

Congressman C. C. Gilhams, who came from Washington to spend the Christmas holidays at his home in La Grange, is in the city this afternoon for a brief visit before returning east to resume his congressional duties. Mr. Gilhams expresses the belief that he will like congressional life when he is somewhat more familiar with official Washington, and he admits that he has not been able in the three weeks spent there to get past feeling like "a cat in a strange garret." He hopes to be of much service to the people of the Twelfth district before the close of his official term. Mr. Gilhams will return to Washington late in the present week.

DEAL NOT YET COMPLETED.

Indianapolis, Dec. 31.—According to William L. Taylor, the deal for the purchase of the Indiana Northern Railway company by the Murdocks, of Lafayette, is not yet closed.

Negotiations have been on for several days, Mr. Taylor admitted, and certain propositions have been made, but none of these has been accepted and may not be.

twelve months $581,000 and it owns three-fourths of the American Strawboard company, which has cash assets of $1,500,000 over all liabilities, and the Uncas Paper company, which has cash assets of $153,000 over all liabilities. The Boxboard company has cash assets of $1,123,000 and also $387,000 of its own first mortgage 6 per cent. bonds and 1,975 shares of stock of American Strawboard not pledged. Boxboard thus has $2,000,000 of assets against $543,000 in bills payable accounts and this by another 2 per cent dividend could be further reduced.

"I figure that we now have proxies representing 75,000 shares and I know that the protective committee has the confidence of the stockholders and that the latter will be with us in overwhelming numbers. It is up to us to negotiate the sale of the bonds and with the co-operation of the stockholders I know it can be accomplished."

S. B. Fleming's Statement. Mr. Fleming was here Saturday and at the conclusion of a meeting gave out the following statement:

Fort Wayne, Ind., Dec. 22, 1906.—The Chicago stockholders have some plan in the affairs of the United Boxboard & Paper company was called by me, in order that I might explain to them the position of the management and in particular, the position of Mr. Barber.

The plan set out by the directors, in their opinion, is unworkable. The only plan that can be brought to a successful conclusion when all conditions of the company are taken into consideration.

The Chicago stockholders take the position that the plan is not acceptable to them. Mr. Barber suggested that they name a better plan and if same is one that can be worked to a successful conclusion assures them that it will have his hearty endorsement.

In conference in Chicago it was suggested that the treasury bonds of the company, amounting to $257,500.00, be sold. Mr. Barber stated that that was a better plan, and if the stockholders would take nine-tenths of the amount that he would take the other tenth.

Again Mr. Barber stated that if the stockholders would agree upon some plan which in their minds was better than the one presented by the directors, that he would be willing to carry the floating indebtedness of the company and to also join to one-tenth of the new plan. He simply takes the position that he wishes at this time to have some definite arrangement made for the wiping out of the floating indebtedness in the company, which is practically carried by his personal endorsement.

One of the principal objections made by the Chicago stockholders was that the American Strawboard company did not pay its earnings out in dividends.

The Chicago stockholders would like to see the American Strawboard company declared a 2 per cent cash dividend at the meeting of its directors on last Thursday.

The writer last evening spent a number of hours with Mr. George Marrott, of Indianapolis, and Mr. Sidney Mitchell, and discussed with them several different plans, the details of which have not been worked out.

In my opinion some agreement will be reached whereby an adjustment of the differences now existing will be made.

S. B. Fleming.

PRESIDENT HITS BAD WEATHER.

Pleasure of Hunting Trip Almost Spoiled by Storms.

Charlottesville, Fla., Dec. 31.—The president encountered today the worst spell of weather he has ever experienced on any former visit to his Virginia hunting lodge. A drenching rain which began falling about midnight kept up most of the morning, making it look at one time as if all plans for a hunt would have to be abandoned.

At 3:30 o'clock, however, a start was made for the roosting place of wild turkeys on Green mountain.

Three covered vehicles left North Garden at noon for Pine Knot and a start for the station will be made at 3 o'clock. The private Pullman car Twilight, which will convey the party to Washington, reached North Garden last night. As a heavy rain probably will delay all regular trains, the president probably will go to Washington on a special.

MAY HAVE GOT RICH LOOT.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 31.—The police today profess to believe that the murderer of Thomas W. Fanning, the aged recluse who was found dead in his home in the southeastern part of the city here yesterday took $20,000 in government securities or currency and gold supposed to have been kept in an old chest. It is known that he never placed his money in banks. No clue to the murdered has been found.

CHURCH TO ELECT OFFICERS.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock the annual meeting of the congregation of Grace Reformed church will be held in the church lecture room. Officers for the church, consisting of two elders, two deacons, a church treasurer and a financial secretary will be chosen. In the evening, from 7 to 8 o'clock, the men of the church will serve their annual supper, to which the public is invited.

MRS. JOE W. BELL DIES AFTER EXTENDED ILLNESS

Hugh Bennigin, Pioneer Citizen, Summoned—Other Deaths.

Mrs. Lizzie Reed Bell, wife of Joe W. Bell, a prominent Fort Wayne business man, died at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning at the family home, 1123 West Wayne street. Mrs. Bell had been in impaired health for several years and death was due to a complication of diseases.

She was born at Mansfield, Ohio, where she was reared and received her early education, later completing a course at Wellesley college. Shortly after her graduation she was united in marriage to Mr. Bell and a little later they moved to Fort Wayne, which has been her home for thirty years. Mrs. Bell was a woman of fine intellect and possessed to a marked degree the kindly graces and the lofty womanhood that endeared her to all her acquaintances. She was a devoted member of the First Presbyterian church, active in religious work and in social circles and was very widely known. Surviving relatives include the husband, two sons—Guy R. Bell and Ben R. Bell; a sister, Mrs. H. W. Gurney, of Mansfield, Ohio, and her aged father, N. S. Reed, of Mansfield.

Brief services will be held from the residence Tuesday morning, and following this the remains will be taken to Mansfield, where funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family home.

BENIGNIN.

Hugh Bennigin, for many years a resident of Fort Wayne, died at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening at his home, 613 East Lewis street, at the advanced age of 85 years. Mr. Bennigin had been in failing health since the death of his wife in July, 1905, and his death was due to the infirmities of age.

He was born in Scotland, October 15, 1821, and early in life learned the trade of a molder, reaching the foremanship of a large establishment in Scotland when but 22 years of age. He was married in 1842 to Miss Margaret Tighe, and they came in the same year to America, locating in New York city. Later the family removed to Mount Vernon, Ohio, and while there Mr. Bennigin formed the acquaintance of T. R. Pickard, who was later for many years officially connected with the Bass works in this city.

Mr. Bennigin in 1859 removed to Fort Wayne, formed a partnership with Sion S. Bass and started a small foundry on the present site of the Bass machine shops. When Mr. Bass entered the army Mr. Bennigin embarked in business on his own account, leasing from the Hamiltons a tract of land where the present Kerr Murray works are located. Soap kettles, stoves and other articles in demand in those days were the products of the foundry. After a time Mr. Bennigin formed a partnership with the late Kerr Murray, later selling his interest to Henry Baker, now deceased.

Mr. Bennigin had traveled extensively and was a man of broad information and scholarly tastes, and was a member of the Cathedral congregation. Surviving are four children—Joseph A. Bennigin, Julian J. Bennigin and the Misses Mary and Marceline Bennigin, all of Fort Wayne. There are twenty-seven grandchildren and twelve great grandchildren.

Funeral services Wednesday morning at 8:30 from the residence and at 9 o'clock from the Cathedral.

PERL.

Ralph Edward Perl, 17 years of age, employed at a washing machine factory in this city, died suddenly Sunday afternoon from heart disease while visiting at the home of his uncle, James Perl, in Jefferson township.

The young man had worked until noon Saturday and had then gone to visit his relatives. He complained of illness on retiring, but on Sunday morning seemed much better. Shortly after the dinner hour, however, he became worse and Mr. Perl blithed up his horse to hasten to a physician. Before he could drive away death intervened. Physicians who, under the direction of the coroner, held a post mortem examination, discovered that death was due to heart trouble. Young Perl's parents are both dead. He had lived in Fort Wayne several years and was formerly employed at the knitting mills.

MURPHY.

Stricken as he stood upon Main street near Calhoun at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Michael Murphy, formerly of this city, but more lately a resident of Montpelier, O., died in the Wagner drug store a few moments later, before a physician who had been summoned could reach him. A post mortem examination disclosed that death was due to hemorrhage of the lungs.

Mr. Murphy was 37 years of age and unmarried. He was born in this city, a son of Ed. Murphy, who was connected with the Nickel Plate railroad. He learned the trade of machinist at the Stony Island shops, and later was employed in the Wabash shops in this city, but removed two years ago to Montpelier, Ohio. But a short time ago he resigned take a better position at Moberly, Mo., and had merely stopped off to call on friends in Fort Wayne when he was stricken by illness. Those who saw him totter as if to fall ran to his assistance and assisted him to the drug store, where he feebly asked for a drink of water, expiring before Dr. C. E. Barnett, who was summoned, could reach his side. He is survived by a brother, T. J. Murphy, a switchman on the Nickel Plate railroad, and a sister, Mrs. John McDouell, both of this city. The remains were removed today from the Pelier undertaking rooms to the home of an aunt, Mrs. Mary A. Lynch, 1710 South Harrison street.

JUDGE HOLDS DECISION IN THE CHRISTIANSEN DIVORCESUIT

Married in London and Lived in Sweden for a Time—The Courts.

The evidence given by Christian Christensen in his divorce suit against Ada Christensen was heard in the superior court by Judge Hyaton today and on account of the rather unusual conditions the court took the matter under advisement for a time.

Christensen was a musician with the Buffalo Bill show that toured Europe in 1904 and met and married his wife in London. He says that within a short time after their marriage she began to call him a "bloody pig" and a few other names that can not be printed, supplementing her oral attacks with club and other things. They did not get along in London so they went to Sweden.

The husband testified that the transporting did improve his wife's temper and things went from bad to worse until finally took his departure for Fort Wayne. The court stated that the husband's grievances were sufficient grounds for a decree, but he doubted whether it was a fair showing to give a divorce when the wife is thousands of miles away and in ignorance of the proceedings.

Wren Were Mismatched.

Caroline Wren was granted a decree of divorce from William Wren by Judge O'Rourke in the circuit court. The Wrens were mismatched Nov. 18, 1898, and led together until November, 1905, when the wife charges, her husband took his departure and has since failed to provide for her. She also stated that he cursed and abused her and threatened her with bodily harm. She was restored to her maiden name of Kaufman.

Sheriff Files His Report.

Sheriff Grice made his report of collections to the county commissioners today giving his receipts to have been $111.56. This leaves a deficit for his term of two years $6,086.44, which is to be paid by the county and such collections as will be made in the future are to go as a credit on this amount.

Lit Against Foster.

Charles M. Myers and others have brought lit against Samuel M. Foster seeking to make him pay $1,000 which is said to have been subscribed to the capital stock of The Telephone, Telegraph and Cable company of New Jersey. The company, it is admitted, has nothing but $100,000 of debts. Myers is the receiver.

DEATH OF ERNEST HITZEMAN.

Former Allen County Resident Drops Dead in Payne.

A telegram to George Hitzeman, the Miami avenue grocer, brought news of the death of his brother, Ernest Hitzeman, who was stricken with heart disease and died immediately while in front of the Bank building in Payne, Ohio, at 9 o'clock this morning. The deceased leaves a wife, three sons and four daughters. Two of the boys, Emory and Harry, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles Rogers, reside in Fort Wayne. Charles, the oldest son, is out of the country. One of the daughters resides in Michigan, one in Dallas, Texas and the other at Payne, and all are married. Mr. Hitzeman was born on a farm in Marion township April 27, 1843 and resided there until the beginning of the war of the rebellion, when he enlisted and served two years when he was wounded and honorably discharged. Since the war he has resided in Miami and later in Payne, the greater portion of the time in the latter place. Socialists and Nationalists Continue Their Skirmishes.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Dec. 31.—Skirmishes, resulting in occasional fatalities, continue to take place between the socialist and nationalist factions. During the night six persons were killed or wounded. A funeral procession which was marching in honor of four of the murdered nationalists to the cemetery today was attacked by a socialist who shot and killed one mourner, wounded two others and dispersed the cortege.

An appeal of socialists to French labor unions to help the unemployed, effected the reply that owing to the lack of funds the unions were unable to be of any assistance.

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF DR. J. W. YOUNGE

tion from the Confederate forces, later became known as the Mexican Legion of Honor. Younge was commissioned a colonel and was given command of a battalion, and was at Queretaro when Maximilian was captured, later witnessing the execution of Maximilian and Generals Miramon and Mejia.

In the spring of 1871 Dr. Younge allied himself with the representatives of the Cuban junta in New York, submitted the design of a torpedo of his own invention designed for the destruction of ironclad vessels and made an agreement to destroy the Spanish gunboats which were then cruising in Cuban waters. For this service he was to receive $1,000,000 in Cuban bonds. Preparations for the undertaking were under way when the United States government intervened with a declaration that the act would be a violation of the neutrality laws and he was forced to abandon the undertaking.

He had spent a portion of the year 1865 in Cuba and would have remained there at that time but for the suspicions entertained by the Spaniards toward all foreigners that made his position a dangerous one. On a subsequent visit to Cuba he was arrested by the Spanish authorities as a filibuster and was sentenced to death, but made his escape, and subsequently succeeded in evading entanglements with the Mexican government as a result of his efforts to aid the cause of the Cuban patriots.

Finally turning from military life, he began the study of medicine, attending Bellevue college in New York and Jefferson college in Philadelphia, but graduating later from the Fort Wayne college. Dr. Younge practiced for a time at Bluffton and at Huntington, locating in Fort Wayne about 1877. The first ten years he devoted to a general practice and conducted a drugstore in this city, but later embarked in practice as a specialist. With headquarters in this city, Dr. Younge has traveled to regular appointments over a large portion of Indiana, and his practice was a very lucrative one.

In Limelight of Publicity.

Perhaps no other citizen of Fort Wayne was ever so often in the limelight of publicity as Dr. Younge. For many years his vigorous personality led him into taking an active part in controversies in the public press and elsewhere, and in a number of instances these resulted in personal encounters in which the doctor figured. Upon one occasion the differences reached such an acute stage that Dr. Younge was made the target for a pistol and was badly wounded.

At another time libel suits were filed by the doctor when a controversy over a soldiers' reunion reached a white heat. In keeping with the turbulence which attended his life, Dr. Younge's domestic relations were not harmonious, and he was frequently in the public eye during recent years by reason of his remarkable eccentricities in this regard.

For many years he took an active part in the affairs of the veterans' organizations, and on numerous occasions here and elsewhere delivered addresses to the old soldiers. He was an intense prohibitionist, and many years ago in company with Rev. M. L. Blaney began the publication of the Fort Wayne Tribune, a weekly newspaper in the interest of the temperance cause. The publication did not long exist. During this time Dr. Younge delivered many temperance addresses in this city and elsewhere.

Practice Was Prosperous.

Departing radically from all the ethics of the ordinary practitioner of medicine, Dr. Younge, in his practice as a specialist, used the newspapers extensively in an advertising way. He made money rapidly and expended it lavishly. His holdings are believed to have been very largely in cash, though he was the owner of some valuable real estate in central Indiana which he purchased a few years ago. He was also the possessor of many diamonds and other jewels. It was characteristic of the man to dress handsomely, and he invariably wore many large sums in cash. No accurate estimate of his wealth is obtainable at this time, but it is generally conceded that he was very well-to-do. A few years ago Dr. Younge was believed to be worth at least $100,000.

He possessed a recuperative power that was marvelous, and that no amount of adversity could subdue. Despite the turbulence that frequently marked his career, Dr. Younge would invariably emerge smilingly complacent, and he never allowed misfortune to overwhelm him. He was devoted to his sons, and gave each of them a fine professional education.

Student, Traveler, Lecturer. Dr. Younge was a widely read man, a deep student of the bible, had traveled extensively and delivered many lectures. In his earlier years in Fort Wayne he contributed largely to the newspapers upon a wide variety of topics, and enjoyed nothing better than a clash with some writer with whom he found himself unable to agree. He a few years ago made a trip to the Holy land, and since his return had delivered a lecture, "From Jerusalem to Jericho," before many audiences.

He is survived by two sons, Dr. Lawrence J. Younge and Dr. Jewell F. Younge, both of whom are practicing medicine at Louisville. There are also two sisters, one being Mrs. Louisa Mentzer, of Grand Rapids, and another residing in Nevada.

large means. Mr. Hayden was a business man of marked good judgment and thrift. He was very widely known and universally recognized as a man of strict integrity and upright principles. An extensive stockholder in the First National bank, Mr. Hayden had long been a director in this institution, and had also served as its vice president. He was a lover of outdoor sports and even advancing age did not lessen his interest or participation in the events of the Fort Wayne Curling club. Mr. Hayden had been for many years a prominent member of the Caledonian society.

His Family Life.

Mr. Hayden was united in marriage in 1872 to Miss Eliza Hanna, only daughter of Judge Samuel Hanna, who was for many years the most distinguished and foremost citizen of Fort Wayne. The famous old Hanna homestead on East Lewis street has been Senator Hayden's home, and here he enjoyed to the fullest degree his quiet home life, his books and other abundant comforts with which he was surrounded. The wife survives, and other relatives include two sisters residing in Canada.

Mr. Hayden was a member of the congregation of the First Presbyterian church in this city.

Funeral services will probably be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence.

CLOUD AGAIN OVER CUBA.

The New Year comes in with war clouds again hanging low over Cuba. In Washington those who are familiar with the situation and are watching developments closely do not hesitate to say that the government of the United States will shortly have to resort to a second intervention of force and that when this again becomes necessary the act must be done rigorously and the Cuban situation settled for all time in the only way that it can be settled permanently. That annexation is inevitable is the profound conviction of an increasing number of informed and thoughtful men.

All concealment has been dropped by the administration regarding the imminence of trouble in Cuba. Grave apprehension is felt not only by the high officials of the government, but by prominent members of the senate and the house of representatives regarding the future of the island. A statement was made by a very prominent member of the administration, according to a dispatch of Saturday, that "war was probably the only way out of the difficulty." This frank statement was made, it is said, for the purpose of acquainting the country with the consequences almost certain to develop within the next few months, possibly within the next few days. The difficulty, it is understood in Washington, is that nobody in Cuba desires a peaceful settlement.

Efforts on the part of the United States to provide for an election of representatives in congress and the establishment of a stable government are not being met with real sympathy by either of the Cuban political parties. This is probably more the fault of the moderate party, which was in power when President Roosevelt had to intervene, than of the liberal party, whose members started the recent revolution.

One view of the situation is that the moderate party is only in favor of the election of moderates to office, and will not enter into any scheme which will contemplate the election of a liberal should he get the votes. The moderate party is already, it is said, stirring up the negro to disorder, and is apparently willing to encourage and foment disturbances so long as the United States remains in the island. It is said that things are going from bad to worse, that the moderates are encouraging small bands to create depredations, and owing to the increase of lawlessness which has been in progress it has become necessary for Brigadier General Bell, in command of the United States troops in the island, to send two troops of cavalry through Santa Clara province. These troops started three days ago on what was announced to be a practice march, but it is admitted that the maneuver was necessary as a demonstration to give moral support to the maintenance of peace and order.

No man is ever indispensable to humanity. Some other is always coming on to fill his place when he is gone. So it is with Alexander Johnston Cassatt, late president of the Pennsylvania railroad, whose death has just occurred. But Mr. Cassatt was a man whose place at the head of the world's greatest system of railways will be most difficult to adequately supply. The Pennsylvania had been vastly improved in all respects under his administration—in its financial matters, which directly interested its stockholders, and in the character of the service it rendered to the public, which directly concerned the people. From a place as a roddman in the railroad's engineering corps he rose by successive steps to the presidency of the road. He was a master both of finance and of transportation, of construction and of administration. He died in the midst of vast plans for improvement, but so well were his plans laid that they can go on successfully without him. The belief is general that disclosures concerning the culpable conduct of certain officials and employees of the road in connection with the coal road scandals crushed him down and sent him under sad and untimely circumstances broken hearted to his grave.

Fort Wayne loses an admirable citizen in the death of Hon. Fred J. Hayden. For thirty years Mr. Hayden had been a resident of Fort Wayne and his residence here had been a benefit to the community and a distinct gain for good citizenship. He took a profound interest in public affairs and had a sincere and lively sympathy with all projects that concerned the moral or material well-being of the city and its people. He served with distinction in the senate of Indiana and upon the board of managers for the International Columbian exposition held in Chicago in 1893. He took a deep interest in agricultural pursuits and no man in the state had a more intelligent or progressive grasp of all that concerned modern farming than Mr. Hayden. His death is a decided loss to Fort Wayne, to Allen county and the state.

Interest in the inaugural message to be delivered by Governor-elect Hughes, of New York, when he takes his seat, is country wide. Mr. Hughes is looked upon as being something novel in the manner of a New York governor and is expected to program executive events in a new and strenuous way. Mr. Hughes, on the other hand, declares he has no purpose to startle folks, but will do his duty. That, however, should have consequences sufficiently startling for anybody.

Good year or bad year? Depends on your point of view—whether you are a jungle packer or a meat purchaser; whether you are a railway magnate or a shipper; whether you are a life insurance man under indictment or a policyholder; whether you forgot your last New Year resolutions or are still holding to them.

Cubans continue to raise their bids for a good, stiff, sincere whack with that big stick. No doubt about their getting it if they offer enough for the experience.

Of course, if the first day of the year is the only day of the year you can get a right start doing right, the time is at hand.

No live creatures except bees will be carried by post between Great Britain and Nicaragua, according to a parcel post agreement just concluded between the two countries.

DEFIES WINTER'S COLD AND SLEEPS OUT OF DOORS

A Massachusetts Woman Finds Health Breathing Pure Air in Army Tent.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 31.—Nearly every night, cold or otherwise, a woman sleeps out of doors in a tent in her own yard in Roslindale.

Across from her cot is another little cot, and here, where he can hear her slightest call or movement, sleeps her husband.

Indoors, where there is warmth and protection, sleep their two children with their grandmother.

There have been other women who have fought against disease by facing the bitter cold of the winter nights and sleeping where the night sounds vividly call to each other across the silences of the city.

These women have been alone in their little tents, and since the beginning there has been born in the breast of woman a lurking fear of the close settling darkness, of the sounds and of being alone at night, and only the greater fear of death and the great desire to fight it off could have forced them to face it all night after night.

Mrs. Thomas Mulligan doesn't have to face it. When she awakens she can feel secure in knowing that right across the little tent there is some one to protect her from the thousand vague alarms of midnight and early morning.

Mr. Mulligan would not for a moment consent to have his wife out there alone, even though it is but twenty feet from the house. He wanted to find out for himself the magnitude of the hardship she would have to endure, and whether it might not be too great a task for her.

"There have been a few nights when I have not slept out of doors—some of the coldest—but almost every night since last summer I've slept out there. Yes, we like it very much," said Mrs. Mulligan to a Boston Post reporter.

"The last few nights I've slept inside and today I'm a little hoarse," she added.

The tent is the regular army size and is pitched directly back of the house. It gets a sweep of wind from every side. In it are the two cots, a lantern, a chair and nothing else. The cots are heavily blanketed, blankets being used for sheets.

From the house to the tent is a runway, a boardwalk, and it is in the doorway that the night is done. Flannel garments are worn and then bathrobes and slippers donned and the two make their way out to the tent after a last look at the sleeping children has been taken.

When the rain has been pattering down they have come out there just the same. Sometimes the tent and the ground outside have been covered with snow in the morning when they awoke.

Mrs. Mulligan's health has been improving, however, and her husband feels that what she has accomplished he could sleep out of doors uncomplainingly for an indefinite period.

Mrs. Mulligan is a little shy about talking of this newest departure of hers. The husband is a big man, with kindly blue eyes, and is much interested in anything that affects his wife in any way.

This sleeping out of doors idea is one which has been advocated for the earlier stages of consumption, and really wonderful recoveries have been effected.

At 8 o'clock this morning there were eight unidentified bodies at the morgue.

At Work to Identify Bodies.

Scores of persons visited the morgue last night and early this morning to assist in the identification of the unknown dead there. The total number of bodies carried into the morgue shortly after midnight was thirty-two, but several of the identified have been turned over to undertakers and are to be prepared for burial. Most of the victims were residents of Washington and suburbs and the majority of these will be buried today and tomorrow.

Coroner Nevitt, who went to the scene of the wreck last night to view the remains of the dead and to secure statements from injured passengers, will empanel a jury and begin an inquest at 11:30 o'clock this morning. After the juryman is selected and the rest of the witnesses secured the inquest will be adjourned over until Wednesday and according to the coroner may last for several days.

Train Crew Under Arrest.

The members of the crew of the train causing the wreck were placed under arrest by the local police. They are Harry Hildebrand, engineer; Frank Hoffmiller, conductor; J. C. Mc-

Cullom, fireman; Robert Rutter, brakeman, and W. A. Norris, baggage master. All were taken to the Tenth precinct police station.

The officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will begin an investigation at Baltimore today. Engineer Hildebrand, Fireman McCullom and Tower Operator Phillips and all others in any way connected with the operation of the train will be examined.

Scene Was Sickening.

The scene after the accident was sickening. Bodies had been hurled on every side and it was after midnight before all the dead had been recovered and placed on the special train and brought to this city. It was only a few minutes after the collision until nearly all the residents of Terre Cotta, a sparsely settled village, had gathered at the scene of the disaster and begun the work of removing the dead and rescuing the injured from beneath the masses of debris. The workers labored under great difficulties, for many of the injured were wedged beneath the wreckage and numbers of them died before they could be rescued. The many acts of heroism and self-sacrifice that were performed will never be known.

Long Removing Bodies From Wreck.

A detachment of forty policemen was sent from Washington and nearly fifty physicians from here and the suburbs responded to a general call, but fully three-quarters of an hour had elapsed before the doctors were on hand to relieve the injured, for more than three hours after the fatal crash occurred the police and citizens were still taking bodies from under the great pile of wreckage which was strewn for fully a quarter of a mile along the track. As the injured were taken from under the debris and while the physicians were giving them all the relief possible, Catholic priests were administering the last rites to many of the dying. Women and children joined in the work and everything possible was done to relieve the sufferings of the injured.

Dying Brakeman's Story.

Lying in a critical condition on a cot at Providence hospital, Frederick Leigh, a brakeman who has since died, gasped out his story of the wreck:

"When we passed Kensington the danger signals were hoisted and we were told to move along cautiously," he said.

"When we hit Takoma the signals were still out and we left the station slowly and proceeded to Terre Cotta, our next stop. The signals were out at Terre Cotta and we took aboard a few passengers and started to pull out for Washington when the train following us hit the back coach and smashed it to splinters."

While the Frederick local, crowded with Sunday passengers, was standing on the track at the way station a heavy train made up of eight empty passenger coaches crashed into it at terrific speed. Three coaches of the local were split asunder like kindling wood and the mangled bodies of the passengers were thrown in all directions. Over 200 persons were on board the ill-fated train.

Trains Crash in Fog.

At the time of the catastrophe the fog was so thick that objects could scarcely be seen a dozen paces away. The crash, therefore, came without a second's warning.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is equipped with the most perfect block system of signals known to the railway world. The accident, therefore, was caused either by the engineer of the empty passenger train running past a red signal or by the negligence of a block operator in giving him a signal to go ahead while another train was on the stretch of track a mile ahead. The exact cause has not been ascertained.

The Frederick local, upon which the victims rode, is a train run on Sunday only and is patronized exclusively by Washington people who have homes in the country or by those who have friends outside the city with whom they spend the Sabbath.

Many acts of devotion were performed by the survivors in the first few agonizing minutes following the crash. Those of the passengers who were able, as soon as they recovered from their bewilderment, set about giving succor to the injured. As there are only two or three houses at Terre Cotta, not much outside aid could be given at first.

Walks With Heel Cut Off.

One of the most heroic acts was performed by United States District Attorney D. W. Baker, who, despite the fact that his heel had been cut off, walked one and a quarter miles to Brookland and gave the alarm. A relief train with nurses and surgeons was immediately sent from Washington. The injured were brought to Washington as soon as they could be taken out of the wreck.

At first it was reported that Senator Redfield Proctor, of Vermont, was among those killed in the wreck. Senator Proctor was not on the train.

The dead bodies were found lying beside the track for a considerable distance. The wreck occurred at 6:39 p. m. A dense fog was prevailing and made objects perceptible but a few feet ahead.

Those passengers in the forward coach who were but slightly bruised heard the groans of the dying and wounded and did what they could to give aid. A number of the passengers started to walk to Brookland, three-fourths of a mile away.

Was Heroic, But Exhausted.

District Attorney Baker, despite his heel being cut off, walked the one and a quarter miles to Brookland and brought the first news of the wreck. He was completely exhausted and after medical treatment was sent to the city. He was returning from his farm at Hagerstown.

George H. Burgess, a brother of Mrs. Barnes, had just put Mrs. Barnes and her daughter on the train when the wreck occurred and was one of the first to join in the rescue work. His sister and niece were among the first to be found in the wreckage.

The wreck is said by some to have been caused by the telegraph operator at Silver Springs letting two trains in on one block. The engineer of the Frederick train has been arrested.

One of the worst features of the catastrophe was enacted at the station of Terre Cotta. Here a number of passengers were waiting to take the train into the city when the collision occurred. Of the large number only two escaped; the remainder were either killed by being thrown under the train or injured by flying pieces of wreckage.

Priests Minister to Dying.

Fathers Southgate and Mark of St. Anthony's church, Brookland, were at the scene of the disaster soon after it occurred and ministered to the dying. They were subsequently joined by the priests from the Catholic university and the Paulist fathers.

Shortly before midnight a hospital train which had been sent from Washington arrived at the scene of the wreck and the work of taking on the injured and the bodies of the dead was begun. The unidentified dead were taken to the morgue, while the bodies of those who have been identified were conveyed to their late homes.

It has been proved that the danger signal at Takoma Park, a short distance from the scene of the accident, was set when the train of empties passed. The train was going at the rate of sixty miles an hour and Engineer Hildebrandt stated that on account of the heavy fog he could not see the signal.

Both Engineer Hildebrandt and the fireman on the train of empty cars were placed under arrest and brought to Washington in the charge of officers.

Survivors Tell of Crash.

District Attorney Baker, in describing his experience, said:

"I was in the second car from the end coming from my home in Germantown. I was four seats from the end of the car and just as the train left Terre Cotta station the crash came. We were carried in the wreckage for some distance. I do not know how I got out of the wreckage."

Frank P. Bodlitz, a newspaper man of Frederick, Md., who was slightly injured, in describing his experience, said:

"I was in the car next to the smoker talking with a gentleman and his wife from Detroit, Mich. We were all standing up, the car being crowded. Suddenly we heard an awful noise and then a crash. Women began screaming and the next thing I knew I found myself rolling down an embankment, where someone picked me up and I found I was not badly hurt."

"It was impossible to describe the scene. Women and children were shrieking and drowned the groans of the dying. Children were running about crying for their parents and mothers and fathers were rushing around trying to find their children. The dead and injured were strewn along the track for a distance of a mile."

HOWARD ADDS ALCOHOL TO FEW BEERS AND GETS FULL

Old Man Could Not Stand the Mixture—News of the City Court.

Charles Howard topped off a beer drinking expedition yesterday with a big drink of alcohol supplied him by a friend and on the witness stand this morning admitted the mixture was a bit too much for him and that he remembered nothing after pouring in the last ingredient. He is 62 years old and candidly admitted that the alcohol gave him an awful bun.

He is working near Roanoke for his board. As he had never been arrested before he was let go under an indefinite continuance.

"Discontinued Indefinitely."

When the trespass case filed by George Layman against Fred Paiser was called the latter admitted that he had taken upon himself the combined duties of judge and prosecutor and agreed to a family consultation to "discontinue indefinitely" the action.

The court read him the riot act and told him to be present with his witnesses tomorrow and avoid the trouble that is coming to him if he fails to obey orders.

The Other Cases.

Louis Snyder, James Smith and James Thompson got together early Sunday morning and had a small scrap in which nobody was badly hurt. Smith was fined and sentence suspended. The other men were acquitted.

Frank Emerson for drunkenness was fined $1 and costs and went to jail.

Charles Roberts was drunk at the Pennsylvania depot and he was permitted to continue a journey to Chicago that was interrupted by a jag.

Two women who disobeyed the police rules against being on the street at night were fined $5 and costs each. They live on North Calhoun street and gave the names of Kitty Kelly and Louise Burton.

Two vagrants who were caught begging went over for fifteen days.

INVESTIGATING THE POLICE.

Chicago Young Men's Christian Association Gets Busy.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 31.—The Tribune today says: "A report of police conditions in Chicago is being prepared by investigators for the Young Men's Christian association."

"From statements made by one of the investigators the nature of the unpaid charges became known. The alleged inefficiency of the department and its connection with vice form the ground work of the report."

"The investigation has been confined principally to the south and north sides, with some in the downtown districts, particularly the disorderly hotels."

TOOK DOSE OF MORPHINE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 31.—Louis L. Ashkin, aged 26, an attorney, died today from the effects of morphine. He was found unconscious in his room in the Baldwin block and died a short time after he came to Indianapolis from White county and graduated two years ago at the Indiana Law school.

TO-DAY

Will close another year. It has been a great year for "The Patterson Store" as far as volume of business is concerned. Our business has increased every year for the last ten years, but 1906 will show the greatest increase in sales of any year since the store has been in existence. We believe we did the best clothing business done in Fort Wayne in 1896. This year—1906 we will do about $121,000.00 more than we did in 1896. Nothing but the best goods at the right prices has accomplished this. Now as we leave the old year and step into 1907, we wish you and we want to thank all who by their patronage and kind words for the store have helped to make our business what it is.

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

In 1907

We expect to do great things in the Patterson store. We have bought for spring a stock of clothing amounting to a great many Thousand Dollars more than we have ever had to offer you before. We know that it will be the largest and finest stock of clothing shown in the state. All goods that come in after February 1st will be labeled "Patterson-Fletcher Co." All clothing now in the store is labeled "Reuben S. Patterson" and will be closed out during the next few weeks at some price.

This Man Writes About the Texas Gulf Coast Country

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 1.
Mr. John Sebastian,
Pass. Traffic Mgr. Rock Island-Frisco Lines,
Chicago.
DEAR SIR:
On our trip, Sept. 18, to find the true situation of the Texas Gulf Coast Country, all of the party of twenty were agreeable surprised and found nothing exaggerated.
EVERY ONE IN THE PARTY BOUGHT LAND.
Yours truly,
GEORGE RHUE.

He has seen it and is satisfied.

"Every one in the party bought land." That was their judgment of its merits.

Wouldn't YOU like to have a farm in this country of sure crops, abundant crops and early crops?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $60. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

Let me send you our books describing the wonderful crops produced in this marvelous country. Don't delay, write me today.

New Oblong Cushions for Cosey Corners

Pile the new style decorative oblong pillows on a couch or group them carelessly in a cosey corner or on a window seat, and they will not only make a room more attractive, but will create an atmosphere of comfort that handsomely upholstered furniture or even antique pieces never give. For, no matter how luxuriously chairs or sofas are tufted they do not have the inviting appearance that a mass of cushions possesses, and incidentally never make an individual long to snuggle into them, as soft pillows invariably do.

It is true that a few well selected pillow covers will really make a room artistic that was before colorless, and will give the impression of ease and comfort when the furniture is stiff, old or ugly, so that a woman who chooses a lot of pretty and appropriate cushions may make her apartments quite attractive even if the furniture and hangings are not to her liking.

The cushions that are being used this year are especially well adapted to both ornamental purposes and to comfort, for they are large and, being oblong, are easier to arrange under the head when resting or to put at the back as a pad. They are particularly artistic, too, and unlike the varieties that have been favorites for so long, for instead of being made of conventional or floral silk designs they are fashioned of velvet—any shade desired—and trimmed with tapestry panels, a form of ornamentation that has not been used heretofore.

There is much character to the pillow covers that smart women are making this season, for many of them are using panels of heraldic devices, shields and coats-of-arms in one corner. If done in tapestry these panels are decidedly effective, and they are also pretty in colors on satin though not so original if only done in colors on satin.

The fad of making pillows plain, with the exception of an oblong panel in one corner, is a favorite method just now, and some stunning effects can be had by using with a dark green velvet cover a bright colored bit of tapestry, that is worked out in a design that shows a quaint, old world rustic scene, or the interior of a court room, where the knights and ladies in gay costumes are dancing a stately school for several years. Mr. Cutshall is a prominent young business man. The bride and groom will be at home after January 30 at 1216 West Wayne street.

To Keep Open House.

Then there were besides the customary number of two and three steps, baby polkas, the rye waltz and the lancers. It was a lovely sight and the children looked their prettiest which added to the grace and beauty of the dancing.

Correct Mourning For Women; How It Should Be Worn

Simple Black Materials Trimmed With Crepe is Good Form and Most Efficient.

Plain Gowns Best, Elaborate Mourning Not Permissible.

(By A. T. Ashmore.)

Of all the changes in dress that have taken place during the last few years there is none perhaps so marked as the new idea of what is fashionable and correct for mourning. No longer must one be heavily draped in crepe for any length of time, even for the nearest of kin, but the period of first mourning, while much shortened, is nevertheless very marked. Crepe is worn, it might be said, on the least excuse, but must be worn for only a short while, the period of course being regulated by the closeness of the deceased relative. Black and white is now so smart for general wear that it is rather out of favor save for the lightest possible mourning, and gray, mauve and lilac also are no longer considered strictly mourning—or half mourning—colors. Satins, however, bright spangled robes and all materials with considerable sheen are now considered quite correct for all, save the deepest mourning, and bright and dull jet trim the majority of all black dresses, while black lace and embroidery are also deemed permissible for all mourning that does not call for crepe.

Crepe in itself is an exceptionally pretty texture, and were it not always associated by custom with deep mourning it would undoubtedly be a popular trimming for all black gowns. As it was, however, relegated to first mourning, it must be kept for that use alone, but advantage should be taken, of necessity, to adorn the all black forms with it just as much as is consistent with the mourning called for. Crepe, however, should be used with some reference to the fitness of things and a chiffon bodice and skirt embellished with fancy little bowknots and rosettes made of crepe borders too closely to the inappropriate to be in good taste. Flat crepe bands laid on in some simple design always make a good style of trimming, and the hands may be any width desired that is in keeping with the mourning that is to be worn.

Make Pretty Gifts from Left Overs

Dainty and Inexpensive Presents Made at Home for the New Year.

(By Elizabeth Lea.)

Dainty gifts that do not unduly tax the skill or pocketbook after Christmas festivities may be made home from leftovers of Christmas presents if the women who do the needlework are ingenious enough to make original things out of odds and ends.

A pretty little needlebook and cushion combined is simply the making of a piece of cardboard cut in the shape, one side covered with cloth and both sides covered with a piece of silk, in Dresden or brochelet.

A tiny half inch frill of ribbon is sewed all around the outer edge of the heart, the color in keeping with the silk used, and baby ribbon is folded into loops for hangers. The ruffled side is used for pins, and on the reverse side a few flannel leaves are pinned to the edges as attached for padding the needles. The materials for this will probably be found in home odds and ends box, with a couple of hours' sewing should complete the work.

Another equally dainty pin cushion resembles a doll's bolster, the ends to form frills. For this is a strip of lining seven inches long and six inches wide, allowing for ends. This must be sewed up in tube and rounds of lining about two inches in diameter must be set into the ends just like a real bolster. This covered with silk or ribbon in a favorite color and should measure about four inches long and seven wide as to allow of three inch frills at the ends. The outer cover is a dab of lingerie, pinpoints and Val lace alternating, or perhaps ribbon-headed beading. This is cut the size as the silk and the ends are shed with Val, edging. Half inch bonnet matching the silk ties this in place and nothing more remains to be done, the result being one of the daintiest trifles imaginable.

CITY BREVITIES.

Nearly all the spaces for exhibits at the pure food show, which begins on January 7th, have been sold.

Professor G. C. Schaub, of the Sandusky, Ohio, parochial schools, has been called to the parochial school of the St. John's Lutheran church in this city. The church is having difficulty in filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. Schmidt, some time ago, but it is expected that Prof. Schaub will be able to accept the place.

The Woman's Bible meeting of the Wayne street M. E. church will be omitted for this week and the next meeting will be held on January 8. The lesson for that time will be the Book of Proverbs. It is the intention of the organization to study the short books of the bible during the coming year and anyone interested in the work is cordially invited to join in the study.

AT THE CHESS BOARD.

SOCIETY

Among the little companies of today which the young people enjoyed was Miss Edna Perrine's tea at 5 o'clock this afternoon. No attempt at anything elaborate was made, but the simplicity and informality of the affair lent a charm of its own and the young girls visited enthusiastically, realizing that it was the last opportunity for being all together before separating again for their various school duties. Miss Clara Thiemme and Miss Jessie Orr and Miss Georgiana Bond, of Indianapolis, received with Miss Edna. Miss Alice Foster presided with due dignity in the dining room and had Miss Aimee Rothschild, Miss Ruth Beers and Miss Hadje Dawson to assist in serving. Ground pine holly, smilax, with here and there a dash of red ribbon, formed the decorations, with an added touch of pretty table appointments in the dining room.

A breakfast party was Miss Ruth Evans' manner of entertaining a few friends this morning at 9 o'clock, at her home on East Main street. There were ten at the table, including Miss Italia Evans' guests, Miss Blanche Alderman, of Big Springs, Texas, and Wells Keely, of Hamilton, Ohio.

Mrs. J. V. Reul gave a dinner party for fourteen people at her home last evening, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Martains, of Indianapolis, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Graeter. ## Packard has never been made. There are faults of one kind or another in every piano that was ever built. We claim for the Packard Piano that it is just as well made as we know how, that we use the utmost care in the selection of material, that we employ only the best workmen, that we give all our time and thought and energy to getting into it just as much piano goodness as possible. We could make a piano for less money than the Packard costs, but we won't. No piano can be made to sell at less than the price of the Packard and be as good. No piano made to sell at any price can be better than the Packard. You can see and hear it at our store.

WILSON LOOKS GOOD TO HIS FRIENDS AND IS READY

Finishing Stunts of Hard Training Were Put on Today.

"Kid" Wilson, whose real name is Ben Bruce, arrived today from Indianapolis and will do a little light work in final preparation for the St. Joe Athletic club with Lucca tomorrow night at Princess rink. He looks good to his many friends here and shows that he has put in his time and is ready for the exhibition. Both he and his opponent are confident and the sale of tickets indicates that while neither of the men is looked upon as a top-notch boxer, both are willing workers and will prove good drawing cards. The advance seat orders from local and out-of-town patrons insure a good crowd.

The affair is between two evenly matched men and Sam Murbarger thinks the kids will keep the fans up and going all the time. This is the last day of training and all of the boxers who are booked for the New Year program are fit for the bout. Lucca's reputation was earned before clubs at Grand Rapids, Lansing and Jackson, Mich., and several six-round matches at Philadelphia. He has always proven a good card.

Bruce started to fight in Baltimore and then took the name of Wilson under which he is well known in the middle west. Murbarger is looking after the men who are billed for the preliminaries to see that they are in proper shape and he is very much pleased with his holiday offering.

EX-SENATOR CAFFERY DEAD.

Expires at Franklin, La., After Illness of Several Weeks.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 31.—Former United States Senator Donelson Caffery died at 10:20 o'clock last night, after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Caffery, who lived at Franklin, La., had a remarkable career. Leaving the United States senate almost penniless, he returned to Franklin to take up the practice of law with his son. Just then the oil boom developed at Jennings, La. The Cafferys made some judicious investments in that field and Senator Caffery was one of the first to utilize oil in the manufacture of sugar from sugar cane. They introduced oil on their place and in the short space of a few years Senator Caffery, through his shrewd oil investments and his ingenuity in turning sugar cane into sugar by means of the cheaper process of using oil, he became independently rich and died one of the wealthiest men of this state.

Senator Caffery was born in St. Mary parish, this state. He graduated in law from the old Louisiana university. He served with the confederates during the war and was elected to the United States senate in 1896.

LIKENS THAW TO CZOLGOSZ.

Dr. Hamilton Says There is No Doubt of Slayer's Insanity.

New York, Dec. 31.—Dr. A. McLane Hamilton, the alienist, returned today from a trip to London on the steamship Caronia, yesterday. Speaking of Harry K. Thaw, who is soon to be tried for the murder of Stanford White, Dr. Hamilton, who some time ago examined Thaw, said: "Thaw is in a dangerous predicament. It is the first time in the history of our country that a man wants to try his own case. In my opinion Thaw is worse than Czolgosz. I think that District Attorney Jerome would accept a plea of insanity."

Dr. Hamilton said that he had met Thaw's half-brother in London and he understood that all of the prisoner's brothers and sisters were in favor of his being taken care of, but that if K. Thaw had won over his mother to going to trial.

CITY MEN AND FARM LIFE

Many Failures Because The "Grass Root" Principles of Farming Are Not Learned.

By C. D. Lyon, Youngstown, Ohio.

It seems that nearly every man, no matter what his occupation, has an idea of sometime settling down to spend the remainder of his days on a farm. In many cases there is a vague idea that all there is to do is to go out somewhere in easy reach of a city, locate 40 or 100 acres, pay for it, move out and live in peace and ease.

An old sea captain once told me of his hopes to own a farm "in a few years," as we walked through a grand park together.

Fifty acres was enough for him, and he would have horses, cattle, sheep, swine, chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese, guinea fowl, and even a goat or two "to eat what other things won't eat."

He knew that there were cows that would furnish the cream for 400 pounds of butter per year, and he also knew that "baby beef" of twelve months often weighed 1,000 pounds and sold for $70.00; so he would keep four such cows and sell butter and "baby beef."

He knew that some hens had laid 200 eggs a year, and that being the case, his flock of 100 hens would bring him a fine income, with eggs to special customers at 30 cents a dozen.

I showed him a bit of home-grown tobacco, and he asked me to send him ten pounds of it at 25 cents per pound, saying that when he got his farm, he would raise an acre or two each year, selling the crop to his friends.

Some years ago an actor of national repute consulted me upon the proposition of his retiring from the stage, buying a small farm and going into high-class poultry raising. Of course I advised against it, but to such little effect that four years later he wrote me that he had sunk $10,000 in an ideal poultry farm.

In a large majority of such cases as these, the average farmer would come as near succeeding as an actor, a sea captain or the like, as the actor or sea captain would on a farm.

The most pitiful sight to see, is an old man and wife, used to all the city comforts and conveniences, stranded on a farm, all their money gone, in debt and not able to work.

That which is good enough for the plain, practical farmer, who is making 10 to 25 per cent per annum upon his investment in farm lands, does not suit the city farmer who has come into the country to establish and maintain an ideal farm, and his teams, implements and all farm equipments are bought without the knowledge that half are useless and the other half cost him double price.

HOW TO HANDLE DYNAMITE.

Take a crowbar and make a hole, not much larger than the bar, under one side of the stump, giving the bar such a slant that the end of the hole will be nearly under the center of the stump. Measure the depth of the hole to determine the length of fuse wanted.

Insert one end of the fuse in the percussion cap and with a knife insert the edge of the cap to prevent the fuse from drawing out. Unfold the paper covering the dynamite cartridge at one end and, with a sharp-edged piece of wood, make a hole in the dynamite large enough to receive the cap with the fuse attached.

Insert the cap, fold the paper covering down around the fuse and tie tightly with a strong cord to prevent the fuse and cap pulling out of the cartridge. Then push the cartridge down into the hole under the stump.

No tamping is necessary and would be useless in soft soil. Light the fuse and remove to a safe distance. In a few moments the stump will rise in the air, free from soil and, probably, in two or more pieces.

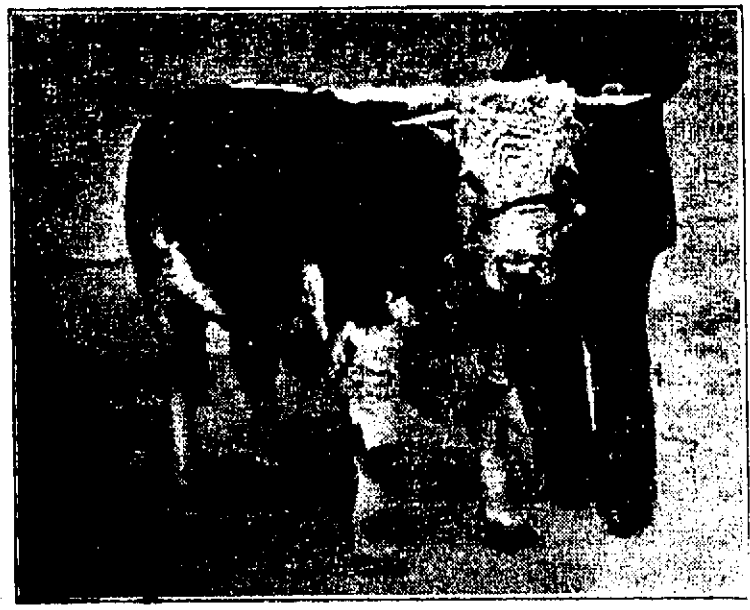

This method succeeds well with hardwood and chestnut stumps, but not with large pines, as their roots are so long the stump rises far enough to allow the force of the explosive to escape and then falls back and is held by the ends of its long roots.

Dynamite can be handled in this way without danger, care being taken not to get it too warm. It freezes at 40 degrees and cannot be exploded until thawed, which should be done by a gradual process; keep low temperature.

The International Live Stock Exposition, held in Chicago from December 1 to 8 was a great success in every way. The attendance was much greater than last year, the big amphitheater being crowded every day, and more than crowded at night. Thursday was the banner day for attendance. All the seats were sold early in the day, and many, who were anxious to see the big attraction, were turned away.

The last judging done was the placing of the ribbons on the six horse teams. This was done Friday night, and the big Percheron section of Armour & Company won first honors, with Morris & Co.'s Clydesdales second and Swift & Co.'s third with a fine team of Percherons. This event was a culmination of a series of grand events in the great arena which has been the attraction for the thousands who have kept the building jammed all week.

The horses of Lord Edward, of England, and Lord Rothschild, which have been attracting so much attention and were big drawing cards for the show—especially for city people—have been sold. Premvicor, belonging to Robert Burgess & Son, but formerly from the stables of King Edward, was Champion Shire stallion

Peerless Wilton 39th's Defender, an eleven month's old Hereford calf which won the highest honor of the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago December 1 to 8, 1906—that of Grand Championship.

The purpose of a series of articles proposed is to point out what an "ideal farm" should be, from a practical farmer's standpoint.

There are many city men who have saved enough money to enable them to buy small farms, and such men can succeed, if they will only begin right.

They can only succeed by adopting practical methods, leaving visionary theories and "get-rich-quick" schemes to those who have money to waste.

Light and Heavy Hogs.

The demand for light and heavy hogs, respectively, is partly influenced by the character of the markets in the different centers to which they are shipped. Some of these call for carcasses 50 per cent heavier than others. Buffalo is credited with taking the smallest class of carcasses and Boston with taking the heaviest. But the demand for light and heavy hogs, respectively, is also influenced by the season of the year in which they reach the market.

Generally speaking, heavy hogs are apt to be called for in winter and light hogs in summer, and yet it would seem correct to say that light hogs are more numerous upon the market in the winter and heavy hogs in summer. This arises from the fact probably that the heavy hogs are marketed in the autumn, thus leaving room principally for lighter hogs to come forward during the winter and early in the spring months.

Eastern farmers make good use of what they call a "stone boat." It is a low sled, the runners made of 2 by 12 plank, 6 feet long, formed up at both ends. This is covered with a platform. It is a back-saver when it comes to any other very heavy article. We have hauled logs 26 feet long and 2 feet through on one of these "stone boats," by placing the log diagonally across the sled, out of the way of the horses.

One of the handiest things around a farm where poultry is raised for market is a carrying crate with handles on each side, extending two feet back and two feet forward.

of the show. In the single draft gelding class, both the entries of King Edward and Lord Rothschild were defeated by a big Percheron belonging to Armour & Co.

The Champion Percheron stallion of the show was Etredagant, owned by McLaughlin Bros., of Columbus, Ohio. This firm also won Reserve Champion on Dragon.

The Champion Clydesdale stallion was Right Forward, owned by Graham Bros., of Claremont, Ont. The Champion Belgian of the show was given to J. Crouch & Son, of Lafayette, Indiana.

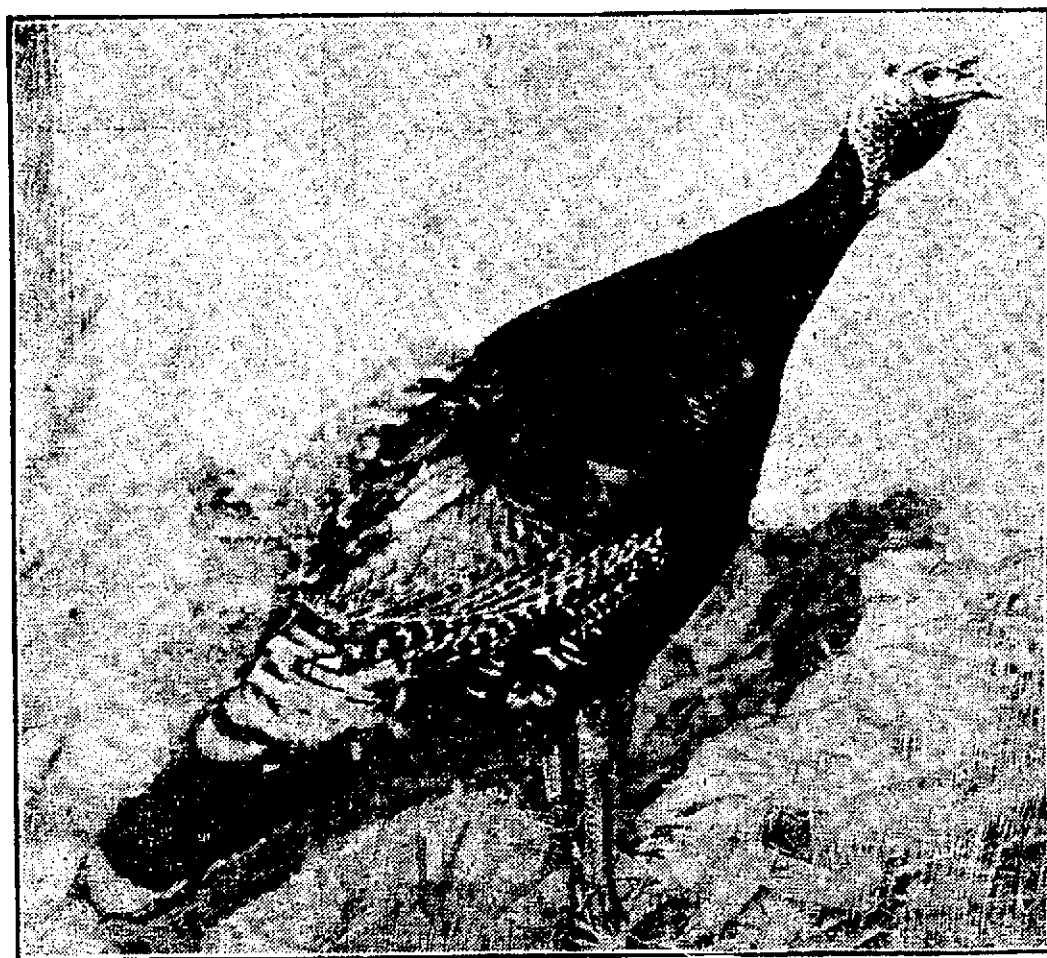

In the cattle department many battles were fought and won. The entire exhibit in all breeds was one of marked quality and uniformity. While the Shorthorn entries were the largest, the judges in the other classes had to exercise good judgment in placing the ribbons where they belonged. As a rule, the decision made by the judges of the various breeds was well received by the exhibitors. The last thing done in the cattle department was deciding the championships. A resume is as follows:

Shorthorn—Best Bull, any age, Whitehall Marshall, owned by F. W. Harding, of Waukesha, Wisconsin; Best Cow, any age, Welcome of Meadow Lawn 5th, owned by C. E. Clark, St. Cloud, Minn.

Aberdeen—Angus—Best Bull, any age, Vala's Rosegay, owned by F. L. Sullivan, Afton, Iowa; Best Cow, any age, Eileen Lass, owned by P. J. Donohoe, Holbrook, Iowa.

The carload exhibit was the center of attraction for the farm feeders. The elevated walks over the pens were crowded all the week. Funk Bros. load of an Angus was chosen the Grand Champion load and when it was sold, they brought $17 per hundred, the record price. They were two-year old steers and averaged 1,435 pounds, going to the New York Butchers Dressed Meat Company. The prize load of Southdown lambs, averaging 103 pounds, sold to the Pittsburg Provision Company at $11.25, or $3.25 per cwt. above the price paid for the sweepstakes load last year.

The Champion load of Poland China hogs shown by E. L. Hess, of Hopedale, Illinois, sold for $7.10. This sale was a scene of great excitement while the champion loads of stock were being bid for.

In the sale of individual steers of the show, Ruby Zenithum, an Angus 2-year old, owned and shown by the Nebraska Agricultural College, sold at the highest price. He brought $15 per cwt. and weighed 1,790 pounds. In the show ring he won fourth prize in the 2-year old Angus steer class. In the carcass contest, the Champion steer carcass was that of an Angus-Exillo, owned by Charles J. Off. He dressed out 69.5 per cent; his live weight being 1,760 pounds. In the sheep carcass contest, the Champion was a pure bred Southdown, owned by the University of Wisconsin. His live weight was 115 pounds and he dressed out 54.24 per cent.

The annual meetings of all the breeding associations were held in Chicago the week of the show and these brought many to the big show. With the ending of the show, Manager W. E. Skinner, who has made the International what it is, severed his connection and will go to Denver, Colorado. The new General Superintendent is Bernard H. Heide, who will take hold and continue the good work that has been so well begun. Mr. Heide is well known to the live stock men over the country and everyone visiting the seventh annual show united in wishing him well as superintendent of the International Exposition.

A sensible hog feeding floor.

Just stop a minute and think of this. If you let your cows on the meadows when they are wet this fall, every step they take will leave a hole in the ground. We all know that. The grass roots will be pressed down into the earth and quite likely be destroyed. Next year there will be deep holes everywhere. Grass will be poorer for your having pastured the meadows. You may get a little more milk this fall, but what you gain that way, you will be pretty sure to lose the other. Never pasture meadows unless they are perfectly dry.

A tight shoe box is an abomination. Wet shoes should be placed on a shelf in a room not too warm and never in the kitchen. Any handy boy can

GROWING BALANCED RATIONS.

Wise Farmer Will Plant to Raise Crops to Fit His Animals.

Many good farmers buy various products to balance feeding rations on the farm without seeming to understand that they can grow everything they need except in rare instances.

In the middle west the shortage is generally in albuminous foods, while in the arid sections they are long on flesh formers and short on fatteners or carbohydrates. West of the reliable corn belt in Nebraska and Kansas, clear to the Pacific coast, the cry is not for flesh formers or albuminoids, but for corn; something that will balance up the alfalfa hay.

In the more humid sections where carbohydrates are cheap the cry is for flesh formers; for oil meal; cotton seed meal; germ oil meal; alfalfa meal; bran; shorts; something that will enable the animal to use to advantage the cheap corn that grows all over this section.

The farmer in the corn growing states, therefore, should do his very best to grow sufficient flesh formers to get all the possible value out of his corn. He can do this easily if he will; not every season, but most seasons.

He can grow over all the corn belt north of latitude forty an abundance of clover in most seasons, and by keeping his dairy cows and fattening his steers more largely on roughage can avoid the expense of buying these by-products to the extent that he has been doing in years past.

It is more difficult to grow grains rich in protein. He can, however, by selection increase the protein in his corn and thus make it much easier to balance it. Corn analyzes from 9 to 10 per cent protein.

The high protein varieties that are being developed in our experiment stations run up to 13, and 14, occasionally 15, and rarely 16 per cent, and we have no doubt that in time we will have types of corn of the improved varieties that will be almost equivalent so far as the chemical analysis shows to oats or barley.

One of the greatest difficulties in growing pigs is to get sufficient flesh formers. The great weakness of all our breeds of hogs that have been grown for any great length of time in the corn belt grows out of this deficiency of flesh formers.

This can be obviated in two ways; one by a larger use of skim milk on the farm. There is no better balanced ration than corn and skim milk, or butter milk fed sweet. Our farmers will have to pay more attention to dairying in the future, and as an inducement, or we might say, consolation, we call their attention to the great value of skim milk in the pig pen.

They can help themselves still further by using largely clover, alfalfa, and rape as hog pastures. There is no necessity of any farm being without a pasture on one or the other of these plants. Most farms can have two and some of them three, and no farmer who can grow all three should be satisfied with any two.

The time that the pig needs the flesh formers is when it is a pig and not when it is a hog; therefore, every farmer should have where it is possible an alfalfa pasture not for a hay crop, not for a pasture for cows or horses, but simply for pigs up to 125 pounds in weight.

Where he cannot have alfalfa, he can in most cases have clover, or even white clover and blue grass, but any man who wants to have it can have rape.

These will furnish the flesh formers and avoid the necessity of his buying so much of the by-products of the factory. It will not avoid it altogether if he is pushing pigs for all there is in it, but it will be a wonderful help. The progressive farmer will study all these questions during the winter and plan his next year's planting so as to produce the sort of feed he needs and not depend upon some outsider to produce it for him.

A half gate hinged on the jamb opposite the one on which the barn door is hung, is a fine thing. It is particularly useful in hog houses as it connects the hogs, but gives them plenty of air and sunlight. The door can be shut at night, the gate swinging back out of the way.

THINGS TO LEARN ABOUT HORSES.

Some Natural Laws That All Horsemen Ought to Know.

(Dr. T. C. Currier, Minnesota.)

Every horseman of experience and observation knows that whenever a horse gets his front foot over an obstruction of any kind and feels the pressure on the foot or leg—even if it is only six inches above ground—he goes backward until he frees himself, even if he could stop over the obstruction by a forward movement, and when the hind foot is fast, he goes forward.

It is also well known that when the halter is put upon the colt's head for the first time and the "breaker" begins to pull on the halter, that the colt will invariably go backward to get out of the difficulty; yet how many colt handlers ever stopped to consider for one moment why the colt goes in that direction in preference to any other? And still everybody knows this to be a fact. Every colt "breaker" realizes in the beginning that it is a question of man power at one end of the halter and horse power at the other. If there is more horse power than human strength, too often a confirmed halter puller follows. If the halter is broken in the struggle, a like result is quite evident.

To still further illustrate this great natural law, just take up the front foot of a horse and carry it forward. Now carry the foot back under the body back of its center and a forward movement is the result. Then take up the hind foot and carry it backwards and the horse moves forward for relief; but carry it under the body forwards of the center and the horse again attempts a backward motion to get away from its effect.

Whenever a horse is seen to try the passage of a narrow doorway, gate, or between two posts, which makes pressure on both his sides, if he gets more than half way through, it is next to impossible to back him out. He seems determined to go on through, even if his hips are broken down in the attempt.

As illustration of leading the dog for the first time is the same as that of the colt. He pulls back just the same, and if the leader is in a hurry, he will go dragging the dog. But don't every small boy and nearly every old man know the direction a dog will take with a tin can tied to his tail?

Now, should not these well known facts in relation to the natural laws make an impression on all horsemen strong enough that from this time forward they will work in conformity with them instead of exasperatingly opposing them for the trouble that can be so easily avoided?

ALL AROUND THE FARM.

The Scandinavians have the pretty custom of placing a sheaf of grain on the roof for the birds' Christmas dinner, and no good citizen feels himself ready for his own holiday meal until this duty is performed. January and February are often more trying to our winter birds than December. Let us prolong the Christmas spirit so long as needed.

The nuthatch may be readily distinguished from the chickadee by its light throat and its queer custom of running about on the tree trunks rather than the branches, invariably with its head downward. It is a trim little body, always with two eyes open for any insects concealed in the bark, and thus does the orchard incalculable good. It remains with us the year through.

Plant a few evergreen trees like the spruce pine for the birds which are winter residents or come very early in the spring. They are eagerly sought for shelter from a hard snow storm, and make ideal nesting places.

The blue jay is not so bad a bird as given credit for, though does a good deal of loud talking, especially when a storm is in the air. It destroys little but waste grain, and devours many noxious insects. It will even allow the robin to nest near it, as the blue jay is not too scarce.

GLANDERS IN HORSES.

Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station.

Glanders is one of the oldest known diseases affecting the horse. It is a contagious disease, caused by a particular germ; it occurs in horses and mules, and occasionally in man. It is not a highly contagious disease; it requires rather close and usually prolonged contact to cause its spread. There is on an average of less than thirty cases reported each year in the state and these are nearly always brought in from the western states. Recently there has been an unusual number reported. The danger arising from glanders is often grossly exaggerated.

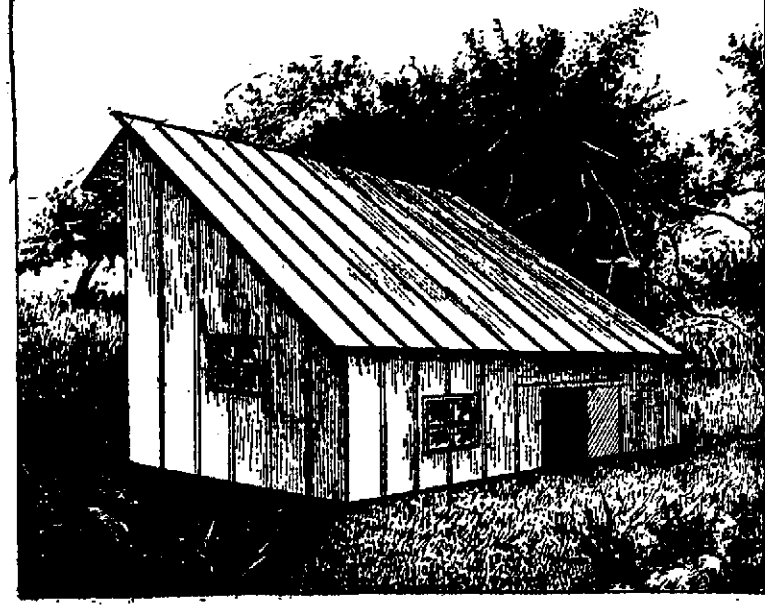

Glanders is a disease that affects the lymphatic glands of the respiratory system and internal organs and of the skin. When the disease affects the glands under the skin it is frequently known as farcy. The disease may be acute or chronic, that is, run a course from a few weeks to several years.

The disease presents a variety of symptoms depending upon the part involved and the severity of the attack. If acute and involving the nasal and other respiratory passages, there is profuse nasal discharge, with early development of ulcers upon the nasal membranes, usually beginning above and extending downward. Or side is likely to be involved more than the other. Hemorrhage from the nose is not unusual. The glands between the angles of the jaw become enlarged. The lungs may show involvement by more labored breathing, shortness of breath and cough; the body shows a rise of temperature, loss of flesh and exhaustion. In the chronic form, there is usually light discharge from the nostril which may be increased at times. The ulceration at first is usually too far up to be readily seen, and when the ulcers are visible they appear to heal and then break down again. The glands between the jaws are nearly always somewhat enlarged and harder than normal. The lung involvement may be so gradual as to present no marked symptoms, or to give the effect of lack of thrift and an occasional cough.

In farcy, the glands underneath the skin become involved, enlarge, and break down with the formation of an open ulcer. In the acute cases, the whole series of lymphatic glands of one or more legs or on almost the entire body may become involved and break down, giving a most disgusting appearance. The animal has a temperature and rapidly becomes emaciated. In the chronic farcy, the glands become enlarged more slowly, only a few are affected at a time, and the ulcers heal after a little time. There is often more or less stocking of the legs and this may be temporary or persist. Cuts or injuries do not heal readily, although the animal may look well. It is from the chronic forms that contagion is especially liable to be spread because the disease goes unrecognized. The disease is one that will not respond to treatment and affected animals should be killed at once.

HOW TO JUDGE A DAIRY COW

Milk Pail The Only Criterion of The Best Producer.

The pail is indeed the only true criterion of the lactating milkier and of the big butter producer. One of the most instructive exhibits in my collection of dairy facts is a number of life portraits of great milkers and butter cows; but it would puzzle any good judge of such cows to select the champion cow out of the lot of over fifty portraits.

A heifer coming fresh in June would have the best opportunity of making good udder, and of course the better the form or yielding ability of the udder, the more the cow would be likely to develop into a good milkier.

The first year of a cow's life will almost surely make or mar the future of the animal. But it is not sufficient alone, for a cow is growing in form and ability to milk for at least four years.

Great importance is justly given to inheritance. But heridity only gives the ability to develop parental qualities; it does not give any ability to make something out of nothing. Thus selection of parents is only the first element in the culture of good qualities in animals. It is the sowing of the seed; but good seed must be sown on good soil to insure a satisfactory product.

Inheritance does not give good qualities any further than to enable the offspring of good parents to develop by the aid of their natural inherited abilities the good character of the parents. The inheritance is only developed by proper training; and it is the best culture of natural abilities which develops the possibilities of them. This training must start from the day of the heifer's birth, and continue, without failure, until the cow, so reared, develops into the maturity of her powers.

There are instances in which this natural ability may have been dormant by neglect, and for years the cow has shown no special excellence either as a milkier or as a butter producer, until accident has brought out the dormant natural ability.

It is also true that good milkers can be made as well as being born. It is well known that calves may be brought to milk when a few months old by the more massage of udder which stimulates its growth and premature development.

Then it may be reasonably hoped that the calf of a superior milkier may be made to succeed the dam in this way by the stimulation of the natural function by massage.

I have proved the great value of this treatment in the training of calves and at the same time in the value of this training in the way of culture of the appetite and the ability to digest ample rations of rich food.—Henry Stewart.

WORK IN THE FEED LOT.

A Maine man tried sweet corn cobs and husks from the canning factory in his silo, but found them to emit a rank odor and the cows could not be induced to eat them.

The champion steers at one of the international shows were fed oats, bran, corn, oil-cake, grass, barley, wheat, peas, clover, green corn, mangles and corn fodder. Of course, these feeds were extended over a year.

In the northwest, where flax is a large crop, the screenings are used to balance barley and spelt in hog feeding.

Recently we saw in a feed lot near Chicago a bunch of fifty steers crowded into a small lot, standing in mud six inches deep, into which corn in the ear had been thrown. In talking with the owner, he remarked, "Them steers ain't doing as well as I think they ought to." Strange!

Sorghum, properly cured, is good for horses. It should be cut when the seed is in the milk.

Clover hay left in the field too long will have very small feeding value. Feed out your corn fodder and sorghum first, keeping the clover and shredded fodder for the late spring.

The way to get the best feeding value out of atchikoes is to allow the hogs to harvest them.

A nervous, fidgety, cranky man should never be put in charge of animals that are being fattened for market.

Sorghum makes good pasture for sheep and hogs, but great care must be taken in turning cattle upon it. When suddenly checked in its growth through drought, it becomes extremely poisonous.

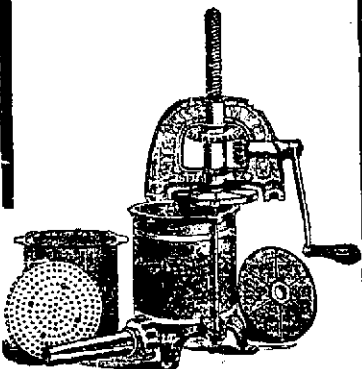

Cattle will not put on flesh while standing in the mud in a snow storm. It costs a great deal more to produce gain in a hog after he has reached 100 pounds than it does before.

The storage barn and feed lots, in which some valuable experiments have been conducted in cattle feeding at the Illinois station, cost nearly $6,000, but they are ideal.

It is reported that the cotton seed meals all over the country are of lower

JAPAN KEEPS BUSY IN HER PREPARATION FOR WAR

British Expert Says Arsenals and Shipyards are Active Constantly.

New York, Dec. 31.—An English engineer, at present stopping in New York en route from Tokio to London, who for the last three years enjoyed peculiar opportunities for observation by reason of his business relations with the Japanese war office, yesterday gave some facts concerning Japan's reserve war strength and its arsenal and shipyard production.

Since the war, he said, the office in Tokio has been as chary of admitting foreigners to knowledge of what is being done in the manufacture of war material as during the struggle. Outside of the possible information gathered by secret agents of European war offices the world at large has no conception of the high pressure work going on in all the war supply factories of Japan, nor is anything known of the facilities these factories possess for the scientific production of instruments of war.

Japan has two military arsenals, employing approximately 50,000 workmen. These arsenals have extra night shifts. At times they run week in and week out, continuously. The empire operates four shipyards and naval arsenals. In two of them battleships have been built and two more are building. Aside from these, there are government steel works for the production of armor plate and material for big guns, a government powder factory, two auxiliary private shipyards and drydocks capable of being used for war purposes within twenty-four hours.

This in a mass is the potential war equipment of Japan. Throughout all the works there is at present not one foreigner, neither teacher nor workman. The gates are closed to every Japanese who is not in the employ of the government.

Glimpse of Navy Yards.

The navy yards at Kure, on an inland sea, are the largest and best equipped in Japan. Today there are between 55,000 and 60,000 machinists, artisans and laborers living there. The keel of a battleship can be laid down at Kure and the whole vessel built with no importation either of machinery or armament.

At the present time a sister ship of the battleship Satsuma, recently launched at the Yokosuka naval yards, which is larger than the Dreadnaught, is under construction in the Kure shipyards. The Kure naval arsenal, employing over 3,000 men, makes guns of all sizes from three inches to twelve.

Besides big guns for the navy the Kure arsenal soon will be ready to turn out heavy rifles and disappearing guns for land fortifications. A special plant installed within the year already has been at work on artillery.

The Yokosuka naval yards, next in size, are situated on Yokohama bay, about fifteen miles from the city of Yokohama. The Yokosuka yards comprise a shipbuilding plant, three dry docks, machine repairing shops and a torpedo factory, the only one in Japan. The Yokosuka yards turn out engines and boilers for all war vessels now being constructed by Japan in her own yards. The Miyabara boiler, the invention of a Japanese naval officer, is said by expert shipbuilders to be the finest of its kind.

Largest Arsenal at Tokio.

The largest military arsenal in Japan is at Tokio. Here there is a complete plant for the manufacture of small arms, field artillery, cavalry equipment and cartridges. The Tokio arms manufactory employs about 10,000 hands. Branches of this arsenal are at Nagoya, half way between Tokio and Kobe. A new arsenal just completed about ten miles north of the capital employs about 5,000 men. At the present time with the equipment that has been installed at Tokio 500 of these rifles can be turned out in a day.

The shell works at Tokio have a daily capacity of 600 three inch shells for field pieces with fuses complete. This plant was installed during the war, and an addition to it is projected.

Fuse works with a daily capacity of 1,100 fuses for shells of three inches to twelve inches is now working in conjunction with the Tokio arsenal. Cartridge works operated in conjunction with the arms manufactory at Tokio supplies the entire Japanese army. The powder used is of Japanese manufacture. To this list of ship yards, arsenals, powder works and torpedo stations there must be added as reserve forces of Japan's potential war strength two great private dockyards—the Kowasaki at Kobe and the Mitsui Bishi at Nagasaki. Both are equipped with dry docks, machine shops and machinery necessary to remodel or repair the largest vessels.

It is evident, according to this engineer, that Japan is intent upon making herself independent of the world in construction and equipment of her naval forces. At the present time there are now under construction or about to be laid down in government yards, three battleships, nine armored cruisers and ten fast cruisers.

New Program of Expansion.

"Before I left Tokio," said the engineer, "it was the general consensus of opinion among naval designers that the new program of naval expansion should provide a battleship squadron of eight ships of the strongest and

Today--Monday

We start our Annual Clearance Sale. There are lines that are not to be renewed, and while there are no remnants in the furniture business, still there is nobetter name than remnants for these odd pieces and broken suites, and at remnant prices they will be sold.

A thousand red tags, more or less, will be distributed throughout the establishment, attached to various pieces of furniture, each and every ticket representing a saving of from 10 per cent. to 60 per cent. Let us say that these reductions will average 25 percent. at least, which brings many of the pieces down to actual cost, and some even below the cost mark.

There will be Kitchen Chairs and there will be Parlor Suites--there will be Music Cabinets and there will be Ladies' Desks--there will be Morris Chairs and there will be Brass Beds--there will be Stoves and there will be Lamps--and there will be Carpets and Dishes, all adorned with these red tags which mean great savings.

In other words, you can select $400 worth of furniture for about $300; you can select $100 worth of goods for about $75; you can select $10 worth of Furniture for about $8.00. Quite a saving, if you consider that our prices are already an average 20 per cent. or 25 per cent. below the prices of any and all competing establishments. But this bear in mind, that cut prices are not going to affect the liberal credit terms, the little-at-a-time plan will prevail during the sale--in fact we are going to start the New Year upon a more liberal scale of credit on the theory that confidence begets confidence.

WILL OFFER SECRETS OF UNCLE SAM'S NAVY

Waddell, Powder Manufacturer, Makes Charge Against Other Makers.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 31.—Charging that officials of the Dupont Powder company have offered to the German government the method of secret manufacture of powders and dynamite used on American warships and by the United States army, President Robert S. Waddell, of the Buckeye Powder company, of this city, has mailed a communication to President Roosevelt and the senators and congressmen. The powder trust is expected to come up before congress at this session. Largely through the exposure of exorbitant prices charged by the Dupont trust last year by Mr. Waddell, congress took up the matter and appropriated $200,000 for an experimental station for the manufacture of powder. Mr. Waddell also claims to have undeniable proof that the Dupont Powder company has arranged for a powder factory to be located in Brazil to manufacture powder for that government and that patent rights which were given government officers will be used in the work.

Gives Proof of Statement.
In proof of the assertion that the Dupont company is a trust and is now selling powder to the United States government the following is asserted in the letter mailed to President Roosevelt:

"That the Dupont International Powder company is in a conspiracy acting in restraint of trade."

"That under patents it holds an exclusive monopoly and competition is impossible."

"That by its letter to foreign admirals offering the secrets of the United States navy and to sell powder in foreign countries is an act of disloyalty."

"That it owns the Laffin & Rand and California companies and submits three separate bids by one party for the same sale."

"That the prices made by the Dupont powder monopoly are exorbitant."

"That congress aids and abets this exclusive powder conspiracy."

"That the former profits paid by the government to this powder conspiracy are used to ruin the business of more than thirty black powder and dynamite companies and pay dividends on millions of dollars' worth of watered stocks."

"That the combined daily capacity for the trust factories is 35,200 pounds."

"That a single twelve-inch gun burning 200 pounds of powder at a shot and firing twice a minute consumes 600 pounds a minute, or 3,600 pounds of powder in one hour."

"That there are over 200 such guns to be served and hundreds of three, four, five, six, eight and ten inch guns, with numerous small rapid-fire and battery guns."

Charges Danger to Country.
"That the source of supply of a powder requiring six months to dry is ridiculous and dangerous."

"That it is a menace to the welfare of the nation to continue longer present conditions."

"That it would be wrong against the nation to build up this Dupont powder monopoly and tax the masses to further enrich millionaires."

"That by conspiracy in cornering the market against the government and by acts of disloyalty against the country this Dupont monopoly has forfeited all right to consideration such as should be accorded private manufacturers."

In proof that the Dupont people have attempted to sell American powder to the German government there is produced a copy of a letter written by Henry C. Watts, vice president of the Dupont company, to Lieutenant Colonel Simon, director of the powder factories at Spandau, Germany.

Promises Information.
In this letter the writer says that he will be in Germany and will conduct experiments in German guns with American powder and will give them all the information they want. The letter from the vice president of the Dupont company to Lieutenant Colonel Simon, director of the powder factory at Spandau, Germany, says:

"I take the liberty of handing you herewith a treatise on faintly smoking nitro-cellulose powder, which the International Smokeless Powder & Dynamite company manufactures for the use of the army and navy of the United States.

"The writer expects to be in Germany in July of the present year and during his sojourn in Europe he will make tests with the powder referred to for the French and Italian admiralty and in case your government should become interested in the matter we will gladly give you all the information we can. The company is willing to make tests eventually at its own expense for the German government under certain conditions."

Letter Tells of Patents.

"The patents under which this powder is made are well known under the name of 'Bernard-Converse' patents and have been granted to Captain George A. Converse, who at present commands the United States man-of-war Illinois, and Lieutenant J. B. Bernadon, who conducted the tests which brought about these results at the navy torpedo station, Newport, R. I."

"I desired we can show you still further ballistic results, stability tests, etc."

"You have to excuse me for approaching you in this way in regard to this matter, since I do this solely for the reason already stated and since I will be in Europe this summer, starting from here per steamship Fuerst Bismarck on June 26."

"I will highly appreciate it, my dear sir, if you would kindly give this matter your attention."

The letter is signed "Henry C. Watts, First Vice President."

President Robert S. Waddell has been gathering information against the powder trust for several years and has already gained the hearing of President Roosevelt and influential men of both houses.

The establishment of government powder plants is now being considered and it is expected that a hearing on the Dupont trust will come up at this session of congress.

Holiday rates are again in force on the steam railways in this part of the country, but travel is not as heavy as it was before Christmas. The very disagreeable weather no doubt is responsible for the light travel.

Today the Western Gas Construction company sent out the last consignment of gas machinery for a plant which will supply Auburn and Garrett with artificial gas and after the holiday men will go there to install the machinery.

It is believed that the Nickel Plate will soon put two more passenger trains in service, one each way. It is said that the matter has been up for discussion before the management of the road and that it was practically agreed that the situation warranted the increase.

RESIGNS TO TEACH JESUS.

Dr. Madison Peters Says Christianity Is Not in Church.

New York, Dec. 31.—Dr. Madison C. Peters preached his farewell sermon last evening as pastor of the Epiphany Baptist church and will begin next Sunday morning his people's meetings in the Majestic theater to become, as he puts it, "a minister for all who may need his services regardless of race or creed." Instead of a private chaplain owned by the privileged classes, Rev. Dr. Peters said:

"Everyone who knows the emptiness of the pews in nearly all of the Protestant churches in New York knows that so far as Protestants are concerned New Yorkers have ceased to be a church-going people."

"Among those outside of the churches are a class of men and women who type and embody the highest forces which are working for good or evil in American society. The non-church-going masses are not antagonistic to religion and they often set a good example to professors themselves. Some years ago at a great labor meeting in Cooper Union the name of the church was hissed, while that of Jesus was cheered. The religious world outside of the church recognizes the fact that the traditions of the church and the teachings of Jesus are antagonistic."

"I am not leaving the church; I am simply seeking to accomplish the mission of Jesus, and I believe as conditions exist in New York today I can do so better outside a church building than in one."

"The pulpit in America, with here and there a possible exception, is a coward's castle. With my pen and my platform work I can, if necessary, preach for the love of it, and I emphatically say that there will never be in any pulpit in America a free expression of honest opinion as long as the consciences of the preachers are held in bondage and thralldom by a paid salary."

SHIELD MACKLIN'S ASSAILANT?

Sheriff at El Reno Declares Hunted Negro Within Boundaries of Fort.

El Reno, Okla., Dec. 31.—Sheriff John Ozman stated yesterday that he and his deputies had ceased work on the Macklin shooting case because they had reason to believe that the negro who shot Capt. Macklin was now within the boundaries of Fort Reno.

When asked if he believed the man was being protected or harbored by anybody there he replied: "I cannot say as to that."

Sheriff Ozman would not state his reasons for the belief he entertained, and would make no further statement except to say: "I know a lot of things that I can't tell now. Some of them may come out later, but probably never."

This statement was repeated to Maj. Penrose, post commander at Fort Reno, who said it was the most absurd statement he had heard in connection with the case.

REPORTS HE HAD BEEN ROBBED.

Thomas Altman Says His Money Was Taken—Police Notes.

Thomas Altman, of 2711 Hoagland avenue, reported to the police yesterday that $18 had been stolen from under his pillow while he was asleep. He also reported the theft of a check for $8.50 and some jewelry.

Police Notes. Chief Ankenbruck left today for Duluth, Minn., where he is to be a witness against James Doyle, charged with bigamy. Mrs. Doyle accompanied him.

Mrs. Arthur Rosecker complained that she had been chased away from her home at 126 Richardson street by her husband.

C. F. Reinkensmeier's grocery at 2721 Broadway was robbed of $5 and some provisions. The thief had a key.

JAP EDITOR UNMOLESTED.

No Interference With Advocate of Murderous Doctrines.

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—Shigeki Oka, the Japanese editor of Revolution, who advocated doctrines in this country which would cause his instant punishment if uttered in his native land, was not molested by United States secret service agents yesterday.

Notwithstanding the indignant protests of sensible members of the Japanese colony, arrangements are being made, it is said, by the publisher of the Revolution to issue another copy of the paper.

The charge that some Japanese make that the writer is some headless Japanese student residing in Berkeley is scoffed at by Secretary M. Oyama, of the Japanese consulate. Secretary Oyama declares that he can vouch for every one of the Japanese students at the University of California. None of them he says is in any way connected with the Japanese socialist party.

In this paper, the Revolution, were published in Japan it would be quickly suppressed and the editor would be punished severely," declared Oyama.

Hustling

These are our busy days. We can hardly keep pace with the orders—but so far we haven't made anybody wait for their stoves. The reason these are our busy days is because we have the stoves the people want at the prices they want to pay. Our stoves are good stoves. A good stove is a thing of which to be proud; its heating or cooking qualities to be praised, its convenience to be commended. Our stoves find true friends in every household. We ask you to view them, and after that we are ready for your order.
